DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kelly.

Kelly shows a method for atomizing a liquid medium, the method comprising: supplying the liquid medium to an internal volume of a conductive nozzle body 82 under pressure, wherein the conductive nozzle body 82 is put on ground potential at 90, and applying a pulsed voltage to a high voltage electrode 38 to create an electric field between the electrode and the nozzle body in an area immediately before a nozzle opening as recited in which each pulse of voltage comprise a duty cycle as recited in claim 2.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 3-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kelly. The variation of the duty cycles as recited would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art because since the purpose of electrode 82 is to enhance the acceleration of droplets, the duty cycle would have to be increased with a reduction of the pressure of the liquid in order to maintain the required acceleration of the droplets and the duty cycle would have to be reduced when the pressure of the liquid is increased to maintain the acceleration of the droplets. Claims 4 and 5 are statements of intended use because since the device discloses the method limitations of the instant invention, the method can also be applied to atomize fuel in a combustor of a gas turbine and the electric field of claim 6 would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. Regarding claims 7 and 8, it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device also involves only routine skill in the art as does the placement of the essential working parts since the method will still be carried out with such modifications.
